CAP HEADQUARTERS WILL BE MOVED TO BALTIMORE

BALTIMORE, Sept. 25 (AP) — Edward R. Penimore, director of the state aviation commission and newly-elected Maryland wing commander of the Civil Air Patrol, said today that CAP headquarters will be moved soon from Rockville to Baltimore, where its peacetime activities will be developed to the fullest.

Executive officer of the wing, which ultimately will be moved to the municipal airport, will be Maj. E. Ridgely Simpson, Ruxton. CAP activities will be centered inside.

Baltimore for the first time since Civil Air Patrol will continue its close alliance with the army air forces through the CAP cadet training program. Capt. Richard L. Wright, eastern aircraft training command, has been assigned as liaison officer with the Maryland wing and will have his headquarters in the office here. The army air forces also have assigned three PT-17 trainers to the state wing.

The new commander said that CAP's job is to advance aviation in all its phases.

The Civil Air Patrol has an important role to play in maintaining this country's supremacy in the field of aviation, and I intend to see that the Maryland wing does its part to the fullest," Penimore said.

Five applications for occupancy permits were made at Rizer's office during the same period.

Three were granted by the city engineer and two, which he disapproved, were appealed to the zoning appeals board. One, the application of George W. Keller to occupy the first floor of a building at 315 Springdale street as a tavern, was approved by the board.

The other, an application by E. L. Shaw to occupy a proposed building at 619 Williams street as a garage, service station and store, was denied by the board.

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

For generations, women have been praying, going to beauty parlors, fortune tellers, writing to columnists and inquiring: How can I hold my husband?

In spite of swamping war casualties which have reduced the matrimonial chances of millions of women, some discharged soldier-husbands are wondering how they are going to hold the wives, now almost strangers, who met them at the station when they came marching home. They hardly recognized the "little woman" in the fashion-plate who had been earning a pay envelope and enjoying it as much as a cat relishes a canary.

Case of G. I. Joe

Take the case of a certain G. I. Joe who has written me at length about his experience. She was so different from the tearful creature who clung to him when he went overseas. She had written that she had taken a job in a war plant and was making good money. But he had completely overlooked her weekly visit to the beauty parlor where she had been primped and beautified almost beyond recognition.

She was well dressed, her figure had returned to its girlish outline, her manner was assured. She didn't lift her eyes in that appealing way to make sure he was listening to what she said. He had rather liked that little way of hers. It gave him such a secure sense of being master in his own house.

As the cab took them to their home, she said casually: "I've had some trouble to persuade mother to continue on with us." This brought him up tention! He had never liked his mother-in-law. When she wrote that her mother had agreed to look out for the children while she worked at the plant, he never thought the older woman would remain.

"Will that be necessary?" he protested feebly. "Now that I'm home and my old job in the drug-store is waiting for me and the plant has closed down?"

Living in a "New World" "Oh, there hasn't been time to tell you. When we were informed the plant would be closed, I went to that new real estate office and asked for a job. They have a development, building veterans' homes. Talking about the advantages of owning your own home is lots of fun."

G. I. Joe went limp. "It won't be necessary for you to work now. Old Doc Williams has been keeping my place and said that I was the best prescription man he ever had."

"But I love the work; it's so grand to have your own money. I never knew before what it really meant."

"Aren't you glad to see me, Mabel?"

"Sure I'm glad to see you, Old Darling, but we're living in a new world, and believe me, I like it."

The Twilight Of Europe

A PUSSANT REASON why the United States and Russia must strive to work and to live together is set forth in an editorial appearing in the "Pittsburgh Press." It is that, as the result of the war, particularly of Hitler's destructive course, these two countries are now the dominant states of the world, that Europe has lost the age-long power it formerly wielded and is now in a twilight from which it is not likely to emerge.

The "Press" says that when a head of a state embarks on a rule-of-ruin project, as Adolf Hitler did, there is at least the comforting assurance that the project can't be entirely unsuccessful.

"Hitler's war, while it failed to accomplish the rule of a new order," it says, "did a pretty thorough job of ruining Europe. It took a staggering total of lives, agricultural lands, raw materials and industrial installation. It caused social and economic upheavals almost as complete as the political disintegration of Germany."

"And in doing these things it probably finished off the continent of Europe and the British Isles as the financial, political and intellectual hub of the world—a position they held for 2,000 years and more."

"The twilight of Europe is painfully apparent today. It can be seen in Washington, where representatives of the once proud and mighty British empire are pleading for the American money which might assure the empire's economic survival. It can be seen even more clearly in London at the Council of Foreign Ministers."

"There the conflict of prestige and political morals is between Russia and the United States—Russia, which Hitler hated and feared even more than he hated England and the United States, which he considered decadent and divided."

"Today the magnetic attraction of Russia's social system, studiously exploited by Russia's government, has pulled Eastern Europe into her orbit."

"Today the United States, physically unharmed by war, is the world's financial center. However distasteful capitalism may be to Europeans today—and it has been bitterly and ungenerously abused from London to Moscow—the fruits of a prosperous capitalist system, which did so much to save England and Russia in their days of greatest peril, now are as compellingly attractive to them as the Russian political philosophy seems to be."

"And so, thanks largely to Hitler the paths of wealth and power, and eventually of culture and civilization, have turned east and west from the family countryside of Europe."

"Europe will retain her monuments and cultural heritage of antiquity, her pride and jealousies and discontent. But it is doubtful that she ever again can exert the power that has molded history since the Roman Empire."

"So it behooves the dominant states of Russia and America to live and work together, to profit by the endless struggle which brought Europe to her present state, to make an effective compromise in their possession of world power despite their ideological differences."

Otherwise, the "Press" adds, Hitler will have won the war, and there is little to gainsay that assertion in view of the facts here set forth.

Nuisance Taxes And the Answer

DEMANDS are rife for elimination of many of the so-called nuisance taxes and the House Ways and Means committee at Washington is reported as facing difficulties in staving them off.

Omitting the taxes on liquors and tobacco, there are now forty-three separate federal nuisance taxes—excise taxes on retailers, four excise taxes on retailers (on jewelry, furs, toilet preparations and luggage) and a miscellaneous group on retail sales. Last year they yielded $2,200,000,000. Then there is a group of nuisance taxes levied not for revenue but for so-called regulatory purposes, such as those on oleomargarine and sugar.

There are three schools of thought about these nuisance taxes. One is that they bring in so small a proportion of total government revenues (five per cent) that they should all be abolished at once.

Another is that the government still needs every penny it can get and that the more productive nuisance taxes at least should be retained.

The third school of thought holds that in an era of heavy taxation, luxuries should be taxed for the principle of the thing. It is difficult, however, to see where luggage can be considered a luxury.

There is a fourth school of thought, supporters of which are not as vociferous and as active as they should be and which supplies an answer to all the others. It is that nonessential government expenditures be pared to the bone.

A Notable Exemplar Of the Gospel of Work

A LIFETIME HABIT of work is hard to break, so it is probable that the retirement of Henry Ford from the presidency of the Ford Motor Company is more apparent than real. At the age of 82, the average man would be ready to cut the ties of business and take it easy among his books and his hobbies for the rest of his life. But Henry Ford is not an average man, books have never been one of his major interests and his chief hobby has always been the business which he founded and made great.

So although the noblest Roman of all the industrialists of a great generation has stepped down from the titular leadership of the Ford empire, his hand will still be felt.

at River Rouge and Highland Park and throughout the entire auto industry. That is as it should be, for there is something that seems imperishable about this man who has become a world symbol for both the industrial greatness of this nation and its limitless opportunity for those who are able and willing to make their way.

It may be remembered that this is not the first time that Henry Ford has retired. Once he turned over control to his son, Edsel Ford, whom he trained to succeed him. Upon Edsel Ford's death he took up the reins again and directed his company to tremendous miracles of production for the war.

Now, having trained his grandson, Henry Ford II, he turns his heritage over to the third generation, confident that this young man can meet the tests of the future as his father and grandfather solved the problems of the past. The Ford principles—mass production and efficiency that enrich society by giving the customer more for his money and the worker more for his labor—will continue.

Henry Ford has lived and grown great by the gospel of work. Probably none has worked longer or harder than he. Henry Ford is now past 82, still vigorous in mind and body. There's a moral there if any one cares to think it out.

Horizon of Healing Is Widened by War

EXPERIMENTS in rapid-recovery treatment for surgery, utilizing liver function tests and other chemical and physical data to determine the rate of convalescence have been carried on at the University of Illinois College of Medicine. The treatment was first tried on hernia patients because that operation is standardized. Hernia patients, normally not allowed out of bed for ten days, got up the day after their operations, walked around the hospital wards in less than six days and were ready to leave on their sixth post-operative day, but were kept longer for study.

The difference in recovery time is accounted for by exercise, food and certain supplements before and after the operation, according to reports of the experiments.

The next step in the experimentation is to extend the treatment gradually to other types of surgical operations, in addition to hernia. Gall-bladder patients may be slated to receive the treatment, since that operation also is considered standardized.

Of special interest is the fact that the new treatment was developed as part of a war medicine project in the department of internal medicine and surgery at the university. This seems to be in line with the general trend of medical advance in war years, with new drugs, methods and devices being employed in the treatment of war casualties.

The war has widened the horizons of healing along with those of many other arts and sciences, and the inspiration of the compelling emergencies of war has itself been a contribution to the professional zeal of those who practice these arts. New traditions have been established, not only in standards of living but in human survival.

The world has suffered much but has learned much that may make man's burdened and measured existence on earth more durable.

Gen. Eisenhower's command, Berlin reports say, plans to end American military government in Germany in fifteen months, and that is something more for the State department to fume about.

Adm. Kichisaburo Nomura, Jap ambassador to the United States at the time of the Pearl Harbor attack says there are no spots on his conscience. He means white spots.

In the rush of handing out war medals to civilians, it should not be forgotten that the notary publics of the nation also carried on their work valiantly.

The longer unrest is allowed in Detroit and other manufacturing centers the more communism will have opportunity to expend in this country.

Detroit, it seems, is a pretty good place in which not to live and work.

NO BACK DOOR TO HEAVEN

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS
Each of us may have his own idea of what Heaven must be like. But no one ever having returned to tell us about it, its beauty and significance must remain a mystery forever in this life. That there is a future life beyond this mortal existence, and that it must be a progressive one, I have no doubt.

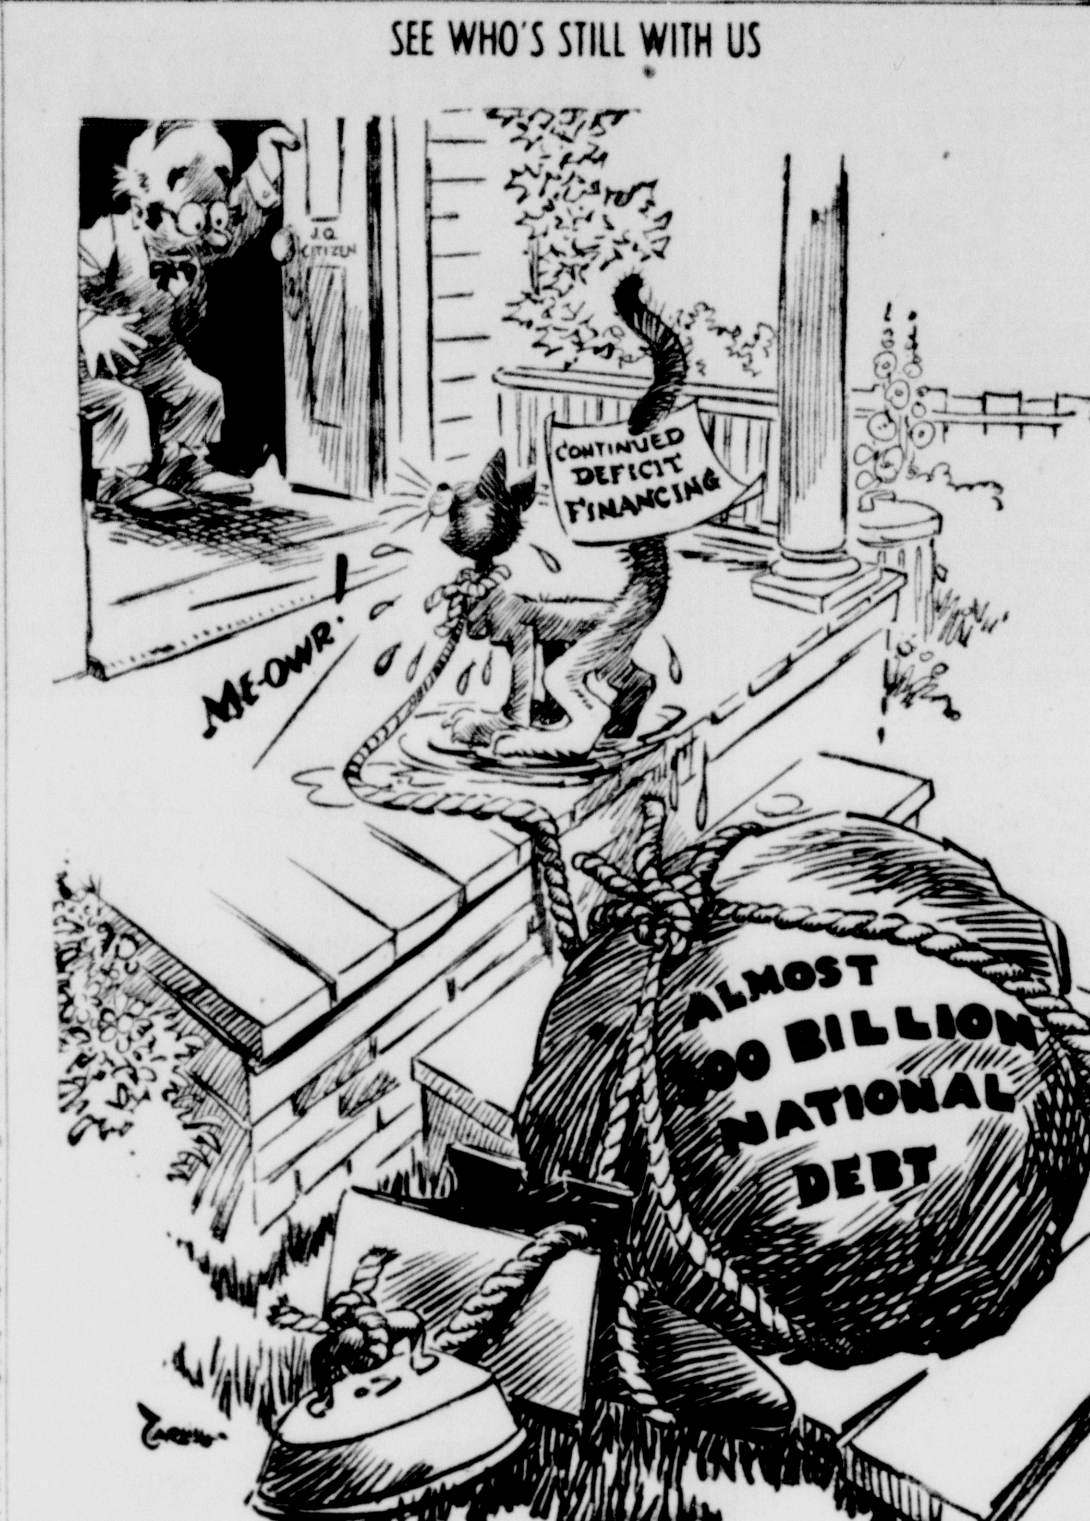

But whatever Heaven is, we can be very sure it is a place of perfect justice and where happiness is distributed on equal terms to all. But there will be no back door to this Heaven. All will enter at the front door—the poor and the neglected in life will be honored guests in Heaven. So will be those who have been rich in life, who gave of themselves and their substance to make this a better world. But there will be no distinctions any more than there are in the democracy of the dead.

I recall an instance in the life of Lafcadio Hearn. His friend Elizabeth Biskland had told her friends so much about him that one of them wished to entertain him when next in New York city. The time arrived and he was invited to a dinner party, but lost his way, so that he was late. Upon arriving, he was met by a servant at the front door, but because of his strange and undistinguished appearance he was asked to go around to the back door! He did this, and his hosts were amazed to learn that this man was their guest of honor. Because of this incident, the host and author was so embarrassed that his friends could get him to say nothing and he soon departed, hurt and chagrined.

We talk a great deal about democracy, but it can be made a mere myth if part of our people must enter the back door, and the better fed, or more fortunate, be welcomed at the front door. Jesus was the great democrat because he saw only the human heart. That is where the essence of democracy is to be found. It's planted there, and there it is that seeds mature.

Can anyone imagine God asking anyone to enter his Heaven by way of the back door who is worthy to enter at all?

Truman Urges Atlee To Permit Jewish Refugees in Europe To Enter Palestine

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—President Truman has sent a telegram to British Prime Minister Atlee urging that around 150,000 Jewish refugees now in Europe be allowed to enter Palestine immediately.

Truman has also instructed Gen. Eisenhower to have the U. S. Army supply transportation for them to Palestine.

All this developed as a result of a meeting between Truman, Senator Brewster, of Maine, Republican; Senator Magnuson, of Washington, Democrat; and ex-Senator Gillette, of Iowa, now head of the League for Free Palestine. These three had planned to go to London to take the matter up with the British government when Truman, hearing about their visit, called them to the White House. He urged that they not go to London at this time.

Too Much for Byrnes

"It would just create more problems for J. Edgar Byrnes," Truman explained, "when he's already got enough on his hands."

Senator Brewster then engaged in a good-natured but vigorous argument with his old friend, the president, with whom he had long served on the Truman committee. The president explained that he was not in favor of an outright Jewish state in Palestine. Senator Brewster, who has long waged a battle for the right of the Jews in Palestine, took vigorous opposition to this.

"You are just following the same British line that Roosevelt felt for," he admonished his old friend Truman. "It was the British who arranged for Roosevelt to see Ibn Saud so that Ibn Saud could warn Roosevelt that there would be bloodshed if Palestine was given to the Jews. Meanwhile, the British were giving Ibn Saud rifles with which he could stir up bloodshed."

President Truman, however, maintained that Palestine should be governed by all religions, Mohammedans and Christians as well as Jews.

What We Fought For

Truman was 100 per cent behind the plan to permit Jewish refugees to go to Palestine, went even further than the visiting senators expected. They had been concerned regarding the fate of approximately 100,000 to 150,000 Jews—some of them from Poland; some from Germany—who are living in refugee camps under the protection of the American army and cannot return home. Earl Harrison, former U. S.

Children's Lobby

Economy-minded members of the House Appropriations committee are not letting any grass grow under their feet. Chairman Clarence Cannon, of Missouri, parsimonious John Taber, of New York, and tight-fisted Richard Wigglesworth, of Massachusetts, ranking Republicans, are cutting expenditures to the bone.

But they're under plenty of pressure from their colleagues to permit continued operation of the child-care centers which the federal agency has been operating. These centers, which make it possible for working mothers to leave their children in competent hands while they are on the job, are scheduled to be closed next month. The protest against closing them has been extremely strong. Especially in the west.

A score of Pacific coast congressmen met Wednesday morning with Federal Works Administrator Gen. Philip Fleming to reach a solution to this problem. Fleming told them child care was never contemplated as a permanent federal project, and would have to be taken over by the states.

Still a War Problem

Representative Richard Welch, of San Francisco, insisted, however, that federal operation until the states were ready to take over is imperative—at least until G. I. fathers are back on the scene.

"It is still a war problem," Welch said. "If you could see the pitiful letters on my desk, you would have no doubt about it. Hundreds and thousands of mothers, whose husbands are still in the army, are desperate at the thought that the child centers will close down. They can't live on soldiers' pay, and they want to know how they are going to keep their jobs if they have to stay home and take care of their children."

Gen. Fleming, who personally wants to keep the centers open, said he was aware of these problems, but it was clearly understood at the time Congress voted the money that centers were to be operated only as a war measure.

Freshman Representative George Miller, of San Francisco, then asked Fleming if it were not true that the FWA has legal authority to keep operating these centers as long as the funds are available.

Fleming replied that that is true. "But," he added, "we have an understanding with the Appropriations committee that as soon as the war ends we are to liquidate the program."

Liberal Representative John Coffee, of Tacoma, Wash., who is a member of the Appropriations committee, remarked that he knew of no such agreement.

Note—Western congressmen do not maintain that child care should be a permanent federal project, but that more must be given for states and cities to take it over.

Nationalist Mood Is Being Repeated, Lawrence Says

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The mood of the nation today may be a surprise to those who did not live through or read about the period immediately following World War I but apparently history is repeating itself.

Despite all the confident predictions last autumn that isolationism was defeated at the polls, despite all the loud protestations during the war that the United States was at last to play a leading role in world affairs, the fact is public opinion today as reflected in Congress is just about as isolationist-minded as it was in 1920. The army isn't an instrument of policy—it's a means of military threat behind diplomatic objectives—because the army is being disintegrated rapidly.

This may be unpleasant news to those of us who in 1920 and 1944 supported the international view but it is important nevertheless to present the truth.

Draft Defeat Most Likely

If the continuance of the draft came to a vote in Congress today it would be overwhelmingly defeated. If peace-time conscription in any form including a universal military "training" plan were to be presented, it would be voted down in both houses.

If any plan for the regular forces, however small, other than that of a volunteer army were to be offered, it would be rejected.

Congress is out of sympathy even remotely resembling military control of our affairs. It will be asked how all this can be reconciled with the recent vote in favor of participation in the United States Organization. The answer is that Congress then voted on the principle but not its application and that the veto power of the United States in the Security Council whereby Congress can determine the size of any force to be used internationally makes the question of participation largely theoretical for the moment.

Result Foreseen

What has happened in Congress?

Is this a change that could have been foreseen? Actually many persons at the War department feared that what has happened would happen. Hence the drive for a universal service law began last year. But the War department itself muffed the ball.

Instead of presenting a compromise plan that had a chance to get through, the War department's higher counselors blindly took the chance of all-or-none. They succeeded in antagonizing most of the educators and many of the church leaders—an influential segment of public opinion. There is a vulnerable more vivid example of ineptitude in Washington in recent years than the War department's handling of the universal service proposals.

The time, of course, to have laid plans for post war security was during the war. Congress would have been in a sympathetic mood then. But as soon as hostilities ceased the inevitable drive was begun to bring the troops back home. Congress today is reflecting the desire of parents and service men to forget the war and go back to the normal life that was interrupted for so many.

Vulnerable Situation

Congress is now feeling such intense pressure from the country with the 1946 elections just a year off that the situation is vulnerable to a renewal of isolationist propaganda. The Truman-Byrnes administration has failed to grasp the meaning of the turn in public thinking and is inclined to go along with it rather than to present vigorously the other view.

The assumption that a large military force can preserve peace and that physical force alone can be effective has been behind the official desire to keep large occupation armies abroad. The assumption that moral force on the other hand can be useful in welding peoples together and can help to prevent the necessity for large standing armies was brushed aside as just so much "appeasement" doctrine during the war. It seems already to be gaining some headway however. In our relations with the Japanese people through the same policy has been sown by a spirit of vengeance with respect to the German people. If anyone a year ago had even suggested the possibility that after hostilities ended the Japanese people would be treated better in the writing of the peace terms and their fulfillment than the people of Germany, he would have been called either isolationist, appeaser or crackpot.

Reflected in Policy Statement

But let it be that the statement of policy toward Japan published by the White House over last weekend is the direct result of a popular unwillingness to maintain indefinitely a big American occupying army in Japan. Sooner or later the same policy may gain substantial support in our relations with the German people. For the mood of the American people is to exorcise themselves from foreign countries as quickly as possible.

Never did the exponents of moral force have a better chance to urge their philosophy of a peace by cooperation with enemy people instead of coercion. It fits the mood of the United States not just because it is idealistic but because it is some practical aspects at the moment in reducing the military burdens which, now that the war is over, few people apparently want their sons to assume.

Crux of Labor Problem Is Seen In Wagner Act

By MARK SULLIVAN

Back of the labor disputes, and of the administration attempt to settle them; back of the recent reorganization of administration labor agencies, and back of the comprehensive "labor-management" conference called by President Truman for November; back of every problem and condition in this field is a question which everybody recognizes but few care to face. The question is: Should the so-called "Wagner act," the National Labor Relations law, be modified?

That labor relations are unsatisfactory everybody knows. That government machinery for handling labor relations is inadequate, everybody likewise knows. President Truman takes notice of the condition, wisely, and acts upon it, energetically. He sets out to pull together the several government labor agencies existing independently, and to consolidate them under one head. To be the head he appoints a new secretary of labor, Mr. Schweilenbach.

By Executive Order

As to all but one of the independent agencies, the process is easy. They had been created by executive order, under President Roosevelt, and they could be transferred by executive order. By it three large independent agencies are put under Mr. Schweilenbach—the War Labor Board (with some reservations), the War Manpower Commission, and the U. S. Employment Service. The consolidation is done, so far as can be done. The common judgment is that this will help.

But there is one independent agency that is really the most important of all. It is the National Labor Relations Board. To consolidate the independent labor agencies, but leave NLRB out, is not a real consolidation.

But when Mr. Truman starts to transfer NLRB to Secretary Schweilenbach, he encounters an obstacle. NLRB was not set up by the executive order, hence can not be transferred by Act of Congress.

Integral Part of Wagner Act

But to ask Congress to act upon NLRB would evoke an embarrassing question. For NLRB is an integral part of the so-called Wagner act, which is the fundamental statute dealing with labor relations. To ask Congress to transfer NLRB would be to open up the Wagner act. To open up the Wagner act would be to open up a hot potato. Once the Wagner act is open, the opening up would not confine itself to merely transferring NLRB. The whole scope and substance of the Wagner act would be brought up.

Out of this embarrassment there is a possible easy way. President Truman, some time ago, as part of a general plan for a housecleaning reorganization of the whole executive department, asked Congress to give him broad powers to transfer executive agencies of any kind. This proposal is now before Congress. If Congress enacts it, Mr. Truman could then transfer NLRB to Secretary Schweilenbach. NLRB could thus be transferred without opening up the Wagner act.

But even if this easy way is followed, even if NLRB is transferred, with the Wagner act left intact, there still remains the question: Ought the Wagner act be modified?

Broader Question Involved

This in turn involves a broader question. To put it plainly: Is it possible for industry to function successfully, and go forward into expanded production, with labor relations as they now stand—as established by the Wagner act, as established by ten years of administration of the act, and as confirmed by court decisions under the act? To ask whether industry can function successfully seems a startling question, but it exists.

We must not be misled by the fact that industry functioned successfully during the war. For during the war much of the Wagner act was in effect suspended. Labor relations during the war were controlled in large part by emergency war agencies, especially the War Labor Board; by executive policies and actions, such as seizure of plants by the army; and by a war-time agreement of industry and labor unions that there should be no strikes and no lockouts.

Production at Stake

Many persons believe that with labor peace they now stand, it is not practicable for industry to go forward into expanded pro-

Will' Hays, for 25 years censor and guardian of the movie moral reigned this week. It was his job to clean up stories for the movie. He left his successor, Eric Johnston, a fine office staff and the 14 fourteen chapters of "Fore Amber."

Now I suppose they'll change the name from the Hays office to the Johnston office. Oh, boy, what a break for Fibber McGee and Molly. Mr. Johnston, former head of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, is a big businessman. He is considered an authority on oil, gas and steel. He'll need to be.

The job should come naturally to him, though. After watching the bulls and bears on Wall Street, I should be able to handle the wily wags on Vine Street. I mentioned Mr. Johnston that I'd be glad to show him the ropes. He said, "I had the rope if I had nerve enough to jump off the box."

But this is developing into quite a trend. "Happy" Chandler got from the Senate to baseball. Commissioner Valentine from the New York police to radio. And now Eric Johnston from big business to movies. Any day now I expect President Truman to appoint a chairman in charge of jukeboxes. And if he can find another guy from Missouri who isn't working a probably will.

duction. Because of this belief, several bills which would change the existing law, or supplement it, have been introduced. One of the authors of an especially important bill states the situation with special clarity—he is a recognized liberal. Senator Ball of Minnesota: "The uncertainty of federal policy in this vital field, or the lack of any clear policy, makes it impossible for any employer to do his post war planning with any degree of assurance that his labor relations are on any kind of stable and enduring basis."

An especially serious aspect of the existing condition is the deterrent it puts upon the hoped-for starting of new small enterprises. Of this Senator Ball says: "There is scant chance that managers of smaller enterprises will risk much expansion in this reconversion period."

LISTEN WORLD!

—By Elsie Robinson

You can't leave love to luck.
Love first may come.
With leaping ecstasy.
But when this passes—
As it always may—
Love, too, will go.
Unless you make it stay.

For there comes times
When hearts
Are deaf and dumb—
When nothing wakens,
Nothing yearns or burns—
These times MUST come;
They are not accidents,
Nor do they prove
Your choice of love
Was wrong.

They come
With every lover.
Every loving bond—
Mother or Father,
Sister, Brother, Mate,
Always at times,
Love seems
As cold as hate—
Cut off, forever,
By malignant fate.

But it's not so—
Such chilling
Of the heart's
As much a part
Of life
As thirst or hunger—
It's the natural ebb
Of our affection's flow.
Such times must come
For all who love.
And when they come
You must know why,
And how,
To meet them.
Or your love will die

You can't leave love to luck.
You must, at times,
Build love,
Though lacking
All delight;
As blind men
Weave a pattern
In the night,
Counting
Each gentle gesture—
Spacing
Word and smile—
Groping
Through darkness
Of both heart and head
As blind men fumble
With their unseen thread.

Until at last
From out the dull
Gray warp and woof;
Of service
There's the shine
Of that sweet wonder
Which you thought
Had passed—
And, once again,
You feel
Love's beautiful design.

Conduit Problem Studied; Formal Report Submitted

Cincinnati Expert Confers with City Officials and B. and O. Engineer

A formal report has been submitted to the Baltimore general office of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad regarding a conduit at the B. and O. station here which is causing surges of water in the thirty-inch trunk water main on Harrison street because of the quick-operating valve which attaches the conduit to the main.

E. J. Cioption, Cumberland, division engineer, said the report was made by Howard A. Eads, who is associated with the Railroad Products Company, Cincinnati, O.

Eads inspected the conduit Monday morning with Cioption and several city officials, including William J. Edwards, commissioner of water and electric light; Charles J. Bruce, superintendent of the Everts Creek Water Company; Reid C. Hoenicke, chief of the city fire department; and Simon K. Carroll, city plumber.

Eads was asked to come here because his company manufactured three water hammer eliminators installed to offset surges of water in the main. He was summoned by local B. and O. officials when Commissioner Edwards warned the railroad that the quick-operating valve should be corrected before water surges caused the main to burst and flood the downtown section of Cumberland.

Cioption said a decision is expected in the near future from the Baltimore office after Eads' report is studied, adding that suggestions for correcting the condition will be discussed with water department officials.

Edwards has suggested that the conduit, which is used to fill locomotives with water, might be replaced by a water storage tank. He pointed out that the tank, which would have a capacity of 100,000 gallons, would also be connected with the thirty-inch main, but that the quick-operating valve would be eliminated.

Fighting Spirit

was due in no small part to the work of H. Frank Hines, 1907 Bedford street, who served as its first sergeant.

Until St. Germaine, Lt. Col. Millholland had been out of the One Hundred Fifteenth infantry regiment for a long time. Soon after going to England in October, 1942, he was assigned to the task of developing an outfit of American Rangers. After they were disbanded, he took over the role of liaison officer for a P-38 fighter group and as such took part in the initial phases of the cross channel invasion.

At St. Germaine, he reentered combat infantry ranks as commander of the One Hundred Fifteenth's Third Battalion. From there on his campaign record closely parallels that of Company G. The unit went into the battle for the port city of Brest, thence by swift stages across France into Holland, through the Siegfried line to Aachen. At this juncture, Lt. Col. Millholland said, such was the momentum of the American drive that it might have shot right through to Berlin if supplies, particularly gasoline, had been able to keep up with the drive.

Roer Crossing Was Tough

Once on the move again, the One Hundred Fifteenth ran into some of its toughest fighting crossing the Roer river. By this time, Lt. Col. Millholland said, the Twenty-ninth division had established a "kingpin" reputation for itself on the Western Front.

Across the Rhine the division took a breather and went into reserve for a time. Then it braced itself for the final plunge to the Elbe river and V-E day. The last long miles, fifty-seven of them in two and a half days, were made without losing a man.

"And that's what you call perfect fighting," Lt. Col. Millholland said.

Before returning to this country, Lt. Col. Millholland was assigned to duty as district town major in the Bremen area where the Twenty-ninth division was quartered before shipping home. He is on a forty-five day leave at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Millholland, 218 Washington street.

leaves, La., before he joined the Third auxiliary surgical group at Camp Kilmer, N. J., and went overseas to England.

During the following year he was on detached service with various general station hospitals, and attended lectures for three weeks at the American School Center and the school of aviation medicine of the Ninth air force.

Served with First Army

In December, 1943, he went on amphibious maneuvers on the southwestern coast of England with the One Hundred Fourth regiment of the Twenty-ninth division, in preparation for the Normandy invasion.

Capt. Jones served with the First Army throughout the European campaign. He was stationed in Geissen, fifty miles north of Frankfurt, Germany, when he began his journey back to the United States. He landed at New York last Wednesday aboard the Queen Elizabeth with the Fifty-second general hospital unit.

His decorations include the European theater ribbon with five battle stars and an arrowhead, the presidential unit citation medal, and a meritorious service wreath.

When his leave ends November 9, Capt. Jones will report to Fort George G. Meade for reassignment or discharge. He has 116 points to his credit.

Capt. Jones is a son of Mrs. E. L. Jones, 832 Washington street. His brother, Maj. Emmett Jones, is serving with the medical corps at Barksdale field, La.

Two men were injured at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon when they fell twenty feet from a scaffolding being used in construction work at the Potomac Edison Company garage, North Centre street.

The injured men, Richard Smith, 36, Brookfield avenue, and Charles Pope, 43, negro, Wiley Ford, W. Va., were admitted to Memorial hospital. Smith suffered an injury to his back and bruises and burn burns of the body. Pope suffered a possible fracture of the left arm as well as bruise burns and bruises.

Hospital attaches said Pope was carrying a cement block and mortar board when he and Smith fell.

Both men are employees of J. William Smith and Son sub-contractors on the work. A contracting firm official said he believes the men stepped on a bad board in the scaffolding.

Judith Ann Williams, 4, 31 Virginia avenue, daughter of Officer Lawrence Williams, of the Cumberland Police Department, was treated in Memorial hospital shortly before 9 p. m. yesterday for a right arm, suffered when she fell down the cellar steps at her home.

Jobless Pay

mittee members predicted Congress would go for it.

2. Seven critics said in a formal report the jobs-for-everybody bill might cost the government $65,000,000 in a single year.

3. The president asked Congress to top $28,682,000,000 of army appropriations. He counts on trimming the army to 1,550,000 men by next June 30. The last War department estimate was 2,500,000 by that date.

Too Many Strikes "Fog Picture"

Mr. Truman had urged Congress to let the government put up enough federal cash to allow the states to pay their unemployed up to $25 a week for twenty-five weeks.

The Senate knocked out the $25, struck to prevent, varying state rates, then passed the bill.

The Ways and Means committee took it over—and voted 14 to 10 to postpone considering it "indefinitely."

Rep. Knutson (R-Minn.) said this was the reason: Too many strikes fog the picture to tell what the unemployment situation really is. Rep. Forand (D-Rt.) said strikes were "just an excuse" for killing jobless pay legislation.

Chairman Wagner (D-NY), of the Banking committee, told the Senate the "full employment" bill in itself wasn't intended to, and won't, produce a single job.

Inflation Is Feared

Wagner explained that it calls on the government to figure out yearly how many jobs are needed and how many will be available. If private business can't supply enough, the government would start spending on dams, roads or other public works. But Congress would have to give the signal for that, too.

Seven Banking committee opponents said all this "would only lead to inflation followed by depression and unemployment."

The Senate pushed full employment aside until Wednesday to tackle the bill to spur army and navy enlistments. Leaders thought it would take an hour at most to pass it. But too many members wanted to talk. So it, too, comes up again Wednesday.

Already okayed by the House, the measure would offer volunteers such inducements as free mail, bonuses and earlier retirement.

Probers Will Go to Hawaii

A Senate-House committee investigating the Pearl Harbor catastrophe decided to trek to Hawaii to have a look at the scene and ask a few questions.

A pair of dissenting Republicans kept the House Rules committee from sending to the floor for debate a bill to authorize Mr. Truman to remodel the executive end of the government. However, the committee is expected to send the bill along later.

The Senate War Investigating committee passed along this idea to officials handling leftover war property. Why not let several related industries share some of the huge war plants if they are too big for just one?

quarrels was corroborated by a son, Pearl Martin, Jr.

Officers were led to the grave about 300 yards from the house by Mrs. Amos' brother. Neighbors said they did not recall hearing the shotgun discharge one morning about three weeks ago.

Mrs. Amos will be given a preliminary hearing tomorrow before Magistrate J. F. Keeling at Hurricane, the officer said.

Vaughn quoted Mrs. Amos as saying she killed her husband with a shotgun, then buried him under the cover of darkness in a grave which he himself had dug for her. That took place September 6.

The sheriff said that after brooding for weeks, the woman unbored her thoughts to a brother, Earl Hagerman, Bartley, McDowell county.

Vaugh said the woman told this story:

After a night of drinking by the couple, Amos told their 11-year-old son as he departed for school: "Say 'Good-bye' to your mama as she won't be here any more."

Amos pointed out the newly-turned grave on a hill near their home, then he drew a blackjack and said, "Now your time has come—I'm going to beat you up right now."

They scuffled, and Mrs. Amos seized a shotgun standing in the corner, the sheriff's story continued.

Girl Is Injured, Trucks Damaged In Two Accidents

Child Suffers Fractured Leg when She Walks against Auto

A 14-year-old girl was injured when she walked against the side of a moving automobile and two trucks were badly damaged in accidents in the county last night.

The girl, Helen L. Martz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Martz, Rawlings, was admitted to Allegheny hospital at 8:10 p. m. for treatment of a fractured left ankle.

State Trooper Harry Holsinger said the girl walked out from behind a parked car in front of her home and walked against the side of the automobile driven by Arthur W. Peters, 43, Westernport.

No Charges Entered

Peters stopped his car and brought the injured girl to the hospital, Holsinger said. No charges were entered against him.

Several tons of coal were scattered over Oldtown road at Spring Gap about 9:20 p. m. yesterday when an empty tractor-trailer truck crashed against a standing coal truck.

Holsinger said James W. Clark, 39, Bessy Springs, W. Va., owner and operator of the coal truck, is charged with improper parking. No charges were entered against Harry F. Lute, 31, Scottsdale, Pa., operator of the tractor-trailer truck owned by Eastern Motor Freight Lines. Both men were shaken up by the crash but neither of them required medical attention.

Trucks Badly Damaged

According to the state trooper, Clark's truck was parked in the center of the highway. Lute's truck came over the brow of a nearby hill and was unable to avoid striking the standing vehicle, Holsinger said.

The tractor of Lute's truck struck Clark's truck and then nosed against a bank. Both trucks were badly damaged, Holsinger said. Three and a half hours were required to clear the highway of wreckage and coal.

Holsinger and First Sgt. John H. Doud investigated.

of murder more repulsive than their common practice of herding chosen victims into gas chambers.

The witness, who said she twice escaped from Poland to Hungary before falling into the hands of the Gestapo, added that SS doctors killed off weak hospital patients with injections.

"They died in a few minutes," she said.

Earlier, floodlights blazed on over the prisoners' dock and the witness, lined slowly before them, identified nine, including Josef Kramer, commandant of the Belzen camp; Franz Hessler, the Oswiecim commander; Dr. Fritz Klein and the SS woman leaders Irma Grese and Elizabeth Volkenrath.

When she first arrived at Oswiecim in 1944, Miss Hamerger said, conditions for the crematorium were made immediately and "Kramer, Klein and another doctor took an active part."

"Kramer chose the victims and had them loaded into vehicles," she continued. "He beat them if they cried because they knew what awaited them. There was no method in the selections—they were made just according to fancy."

The Kelsey-Hayes strike was largely responsible for the closing down of the Ford Motor Company's automobile production lines and the layoff of 50,000 employees. It followed the refusal of the Kelsey-Hayes management to reinstate three minor union officials whose dismissal for participating in the election of a foreman had been upheld by the War Labor Board.

The management offered to negotiate a contract with the UAW-CIO after the workers return to their jobs.

instructions from President Truman, which seems unlikely at this late date and on such short notice, it is considered improbable that any decision will be reached before the foreign ministers leave in the next day or two. The subject undoubtedly will be taken up in diplomatic exchanges, however.

Persons in a position to know what has happened in the meetings of the foreign ministers, which are closed to the press, said Molotov's move in demanding an Allied commission for Japan was a reflection of Soviet dissatisfaction with what the Russians regard as MacArthur's policy toward the "old gang" in Japan, especially the industrialists.

The foreign ministers continued to skirt big problems, and a communique tonight said simply that today's sessions had dealt with such issues as repatriation of Russian and French nationals, and Soviet and French proposals regarding reparations.

Bevin, Molotov Clash

The council scheduled another meeting for 11 a. m. tomorrow. Meanwhile, reliable sources said council sessions had been marked by bitter personal clashes between British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Molotov. Molotov was said to have declared once that Bevin was supporting an anti-democratic regime in Greece. Bevin reportedly answered angrily that he refused to permit being spoken to in such a tone.

Earlier, the Russians were said to have accused "interference" in the Balkans—an apparent reversal of the understanding sought by the late President Roosevelt and former Prime Minister Churchill that there should be no "spheres of influence."

The Russians, it was reported, took the position that present regimes in Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary are democratic and representative, and that Balkan frontiers should be worked out between the countries involved rather than drawn by the Big Five in peace treaties. British-American delegates disagreed on both points.

months "if we are not too ruthless and cruel."

A headquarters spokesman said this impression was incorrect, and what he (MacArthur) said was that occupation forces under favorable conditions could be reduced to minimum size in six months.

"He has stated," the spokesman continued, "that the occupation itself might last many years."

"In Dallas, Dealey said the quotation he used was copied from diary notes which he made a few minutes after he and other publishers lunched with the general in Tokyo earlier this month. He added that the question probably revolved around what MacArthur meant by an 'army of occupation.'"

Armed Revolt

Evidence that the nationwide opposition to the Peron government had penetrated into lower army ranks was given in dispatches from Cordoba that two lieutenant colonels, one major and many lower officers, including Rawson's son, Lt. Franklin Rawson, also were arrested.

Furthermore, fifty-one navy officers—among them four admirals, seven vice-admirals and ten rear-admirals—in a statement to the nation issued two days ago, joined the ranks of those demanding full restoration of constitutional life in the country through prompt elections free from fraud and coercion.

B and P Women Have Special Musical Program

The Business and Professional Women's club opened its fall season with a dinner meeting last evening at Central YMCA, with Miss Anna Nicht presiding.

Prof. and Mrs. Maurice Matteson, Frostburg State Teachers college, were the guests artists for the musical program, under the chairmanship of Miss Lillian Compton. Prof. Matteson lectured on ballads and illustrated his talk by singing several of his own arrangements. Mrs. Matteson played a number of piano solos.

Miss Mary Jane Sowerby discussed legislative bill 77, pertaining to the county library project, and the club went on record as supporting the project.

Six new members were enrolled in the club. They are Miss Ruby Adams, director of elementary education; Mrs. Mabel Hoyer, social studies teacher at Fort Hill; Mrs. Irene Fike, science teacher at Allegheny; Miss Anna M. Quay, superintendent of nurses at Memorial hospital; Miss Donna Ensign, advertising manager at Rosenbaum Brothers; and Mrs. Bebe Flynn, buyer in the millinery department at Rosenbaums.

Miss Loretta McGeady was named chairman for the next meeting to be held October 9 at Frostburg State Teachers college.

Special Discussion Meetings To Be Held Each Month

Elementary Principals Will Meet with Charles L. Kopp

The Elementary Principals Association will hold special meetings each month with Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools of Allegheny county, in addition to the regular association meetings.

The meetings will be for the purpose of discussing current problems of education, and will be held from 7 to 9 o'clock. The first meeting will be held October 15 and thereafter will be held on the second Monday of the month.

Plans for the meetings were formulated at the first meeting of the school year of the association held Monday evening at Colonial inn, with Miss Lulu Blonsky presiding, and Miss Ruby Adams and Mr. Kopp as guest speakers, discussing the sharing and evaluating of experiences of the teachers.

In line with Miss Adams' suggestion to recognize the great contribution of the children to the war effort in bringing armfuls of newspapers to school for scrap drives and continuing giving the children work experiences of different ages, Miss Blonsky suggested that the association adopt "Develop Readjustments To Meet Reconversion Needs" as the theme for the year.

Mr. Kopp spoke of the relation of greater expenditures to better schools and pointed out that he felt that they were due to a better morale, confidence and higher quality of instruction.

Discussions were held under the direction of Miss Adams on "tools of learning," "planning together," "curriculum," "emphasis on international affairs," "interests of children" and "relating teaching to time and place."

Arthur Thomas was vocal soloist and sang, "Tally-Ho," "Young Tom O'Devon," "The Blush Rose," and "Jane," with Miss Mabel Meyers at the piano. Both act from Frostburg.

Miss Loretta McGeady was named chairman for the dinner meeting to be held November 26. Her committee includes Mrs. Helen Griffin, Miss Nellie Powell and Miss Sara Wright.

Farmer Is Sentenced To 12 Years in Prison For Killing Daughter

TOWSON, Md., Sept. 25 (AP)—Harry E. Brown, 52-year-old Baltimore county farmer, was sentenced in circuit court today to twelve years in the Maryland penitentiary for killing his 21-year-old daughter, Mrs. Catherine Wenner, last spring.

Brown was convicted of second degree murder last Wednesday after a trial before Judges C. Gus Grason and John B. Gontum.

Testimony during the trial was to the effect that Brown had gone to the home of his daughter with a shotgun. When asked by his daughter what he intended to do with the gun, the farmer replied, "I brought it to use it, and I suppose I had just as well start on you."

Mrs. Wenner was killed by a shotgun blast which, testimony brought out, was intended for her mother, who was estranged from Brown.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 25—(AP)—Mrs. Otto Williams, about 50, was burned to death when fire destroyed her two-story frame house at Swan Creek, three miles south of here.

Her husband, an employee of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, at the Swan Creek power house, had lighted the oil stove and left their home yesterday to go for water a short distance away. When he returned he saw flames coming from the kitchen. The fire had made such headway he could not get inside to arouse his wife, who was sleeping in the room above the kitchen. Williams was burned about the hands.

Lewis Asks Hard Coal Miners To Boost Output

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 (AP)—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, has appealed to individual hard coal miners to increase production.

This was disclosed today by the official bulletin of the Anthracite Institute which published a letter from Lewis and other UMW officers and a statement from Frank W. Earnest, president of the institute, commending the action.

Lewis's appeal was mailed to each UMW member in the anthracite field and stated: "The records indicate that production per man per day is falling off. This trend should be the other way."

Increased individual output was necessary, he said, to meet the hard coal industry to "meet post-war competition of oil and other fuels."

The interior of the building has been repainted, shelves have been erected and they have begun moving into the room and expect to occupy it inside of a month.

Poll Shows People Are Uncertain Where Pearl Harbor Blame Belongs

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion
PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 25.—
Nearly four years after Pearl Harbor, the American public has been unable to reach any clear-cut decision as to where blame for the disaster should rest.

A nation-wide poll shows great diversity of opinion, with some blaming Washington and President Roosevelt, others the army and navy, and still others the country as a whole. Fewer than twenty per cent can agree on fixing the blame on any one factor.

The lack of agreement on responsibility, reflect in Congressional minds, is undoubtedly what started the movement for the congressional investigation of Pearl Harbor which is now under way.

The findings of the Committee may alter opinions and focus blame more clearly, but right now only ten per cent of Americans place major blame on Adm. Husband E. Kimmel, or Gen. Walter Short, the naval and army officers in charge of the Pearl Harbor attack.

More are inclined to look higher up for responsibility, blaming the government in Washington — with some singling out President Roosevelt—rather than the commanders who were on the spot that fateful morning of December 7, 1941.

Although the army's 3-man investigating committee criticized Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, and former Secretary of State Cordell Hull, in connection with Pearl Harbor, today's survey finds that only about one per cent of the American people specifically blame Gen. Marshall or Mr. Hull.

More than seven out of ten Americans have heard or read about the Pearl Harbor reports recently issued by the War and Navy departments. Those who had were asked in the survey:

"Who do you think was chiefly to blame for the Pearl Harbor disaster?"

The principal findings:

Approximately one-sixth (seven per cent) of those who had heard or read about the Pearl Harbor report blamed the government in Washington. The next largest group (fifteen per cent) said that we are all to blame" or "the whole country is to blame". Another eleven per cent singled out President Roosevelt as chiefly responsible for the disaster.

Adm. Kimmel, Gen. Short or the army and navy at Pearl Harbor were blamed by a total of ten per cent, while approximately the same number (eight per cent) blamed the army or navy in general. Mr. Hull, Gen. Marshall, Secretary of Navy Knox, were named by one per cent each.

Because Pearl Harbor responsibility is not yet clear in the minds of the people, it is not surprising to find that more people favor further investigating of Pearl Harbor than oppose it.

Attitudes on that matter were sounded as follows:

"Are you satisfied with the report that has been made on Pearl Harbor, or do you think Congress should investigate this further?"

Those who had heard or read about the Pearl Harbor report by the army and navy voted as follows:

Satisfied	29%
Should investigate further	55
No Opinion	16

Some Rank Deals
With the British

AP Newsfeatures

HOLLYWOOD — The arrival of Patricia Roc, British film actress who will make a movie in America, reemphasizes the growing stature of J. Arthur Rank in the world film industry.

Rank, top figure in British motion pictures, negotiated several alliances with Hollywood companies during a recent visit.

One calls for the exchange of important stars, and Miss Roc is the first Rank property to come to Hollywood on that basis. She will appear in "Canyon Passage" at Universal Studios.

Pat Kirkwood, of the British musical comedy stage, also is in Hollywood doing a picture (at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer) on an exchange basis, but in neither case has the American star been selected for reciprocal service in British studios. Aside from the interchange of talent, Rank's negotiations while here included releasing arrangements with several studios. A survey showed that at least twenty British-made Rank pictures will be distributed by Hollywood companies in 1945 and 1946.

Twentieth Century-Fox already has released "The Way Ahead," and has others on its list.

Rank has extensive holdings — reportedly twenty-five per cent — in Universal, which released three of his films last year and which will now introduce Miss Roc to American audiences in an American picture.

United Artists has perhaps the heaviest commitment — seven Rank pictures. Two of these, "Mr. Emmanuel" and "Colonel Blimp," have already been released here.

Public Opinion Surveys Prove Women Everywhere Prefer to

Cook with Gas

and here's why

More women cook with Gas than with any other fuel, in the United States. In certain areas, 99% of all housewives who have a choice of fuels prefer Gas. Why is Gas the favorite source of heat for cooking? Here are some of the reasons women give:

1. Gas is economical.

In many instances, for example, an average family can cook a month's meals with Gas, for about one dollar. What other service can match such economy?

2. Gas is more efficient.

Women find the modern Gas range cooks food faster, more easily, than any other type of cooking appliance. They get instant, maximum heat the minute the range is turned on, and with the insulated Gas range, the heat is confined to the food — kitchens are cooler.

3. Dependability of Gas is appreciated by women. Gas is there when they want it—no embarrassing interruptions at critical moments during cooking. There are no expensive parts to burn out or wear out, on the Gas range.

4. Automatic control of Gas—providing just the temperature called for by the recipe. Gas is the most precisely controllable of all fuels, a fact that appeals to women with busy households. They can set the Gas range at the desired heat and go off to other tasks, knowing it will never vary.

5. Cleanliness of Gas, that makes for cleaner cooking and ease in keeping the range bright and sparkling, is another reason women choose the Gas range over others.

6. Modernity

in the beautifully designed Gas ranges of today appeals to the American woman who always likes nice things. "Charming and efficient" sums up her judgment of the modern Gas kitchen.

You, too, will agree with all of these opinions when you have your New Freedom Gas Kitchen. To be sure you have it as early as possible, consult your Gas Appliance Dealer now, or your Gas Company.

CHICAGO, Sept. 25 (AP)—Those "50,000 jitters" jolted the Cardinals just a little bit more than the Cubs today—and the jolt jerked Chicago's Grizzlies virtually out of reach in front of the National League's pennant stretch struggle.

The Cubs came to life with a four-run rally in the seventh inning of this first game of the senior circuit's own "little world series" to pile up a 6 to 5 win and jump 2 1/2 games in front of St. Louis in the flag chase.

The Cubs now have to take only four of their remaining six games to lock up the championship, even if the Cards win all of the five they still have to play.

Riding to victory on the shaky—but rugged right arm of Hank Borowy, the Cubs, too, had all the heat taken off them for tomorrow's second and final fust. The Cards are carrying all the load now—especially since their ace, Harry (The Cat) Brecheen, was trounced soundly and solidly today.

Borowy wasn't around at the finish today. Coming back with a two-run rally in the eighth, the Cards eluded Hank out of the box for the first time in twelve starts since he joined the Cubs.

And, for a few moments it looked as if the Cards might still do it. But, with the tying run on first, only one out, and the head of the St. Louis battering order coming up, old Ray Prim, the 38-year-old rookie southpaw from Saltillo, Ala., came along and put out the fire. The box:

BY GAYLE TALBOT
DETROIT, Sept. 25 (AP)—Most of the Detroit Tigers sat around their hotel home today and watched the descent of a soothing, gentle rain with all the appreciation of a Texas cotton farmer after a long drought.

To Manager Steve O'Neill's nervous athletes each drop looked like another digit in a world series check. And said hopefully: "Looks like it might last for days."

There was never a chance of playing today's opener with Cleveland. Before noon the home club, which announced there would be a double-header tomorrow, starting at 1:30 p. m. (Eastern War Time).

If those games should be washed out, too, the Tigers automatically would become American league champions, assured of finishing ahead of the idle Washington Senators on percentage points even if they should drop their final two bouts in St. Louis Saturday and Sunday.

The best the weather bureau could say was that tomorrow's weather should be better—how much better it wouldn't guess. The airport said it would clear in the afternoon. Even if the sun should appear early in the day, Briggs stadium will be a very wet ball yard at game time.

If it is possible to play the two games, then the Tigers must wait to sew up the pennant. A split would assure them a tie with Washington and carry the flag down to the closing pair in St. Louis.

After their experience with the Browns Sunday, when Nelson Potter scrawled them into a two-hit shutout, the Tigers are frank in saying they have no desire to buck St. Louis in a couple of payoff games. If the rain lets them down, they are determined to beat the Indians twice and get it over with.

Manager O'Neill, before splashing over to a hospital for a routine physical check, said his pitching choices would be the same—Hal Newhouse and Al Benton. Allie Reynolds and Steve Gromek were to go for the Indians.

BROWNS TRIM CHISOX
ST. LOUIS, Sept. 25 (AP)—The St. Louis Browns put together a walk and four hits, including a double by Chet Laabs, to produce four runs in the fourth inning today to defeat the Chicago White Sox 5 to 1 for Lefty Al Hollingsworth's twelfth victory of the year.

In the duel of the southpaws, Lefty Ed Lopat retired after the last fourth for a pinch-batter. The White Sox scored their lone run in the next inning. Bill Nagel crossing the plate on a centerfield fly by Wally Moses. The box:

Harris Will Ask Grand Jury To Indict Mrs. Hite

Manslaughter by Auto Will Be Proposed; Spiker Is Held

State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris said yesterday that he will propose to the October grand jury when it convenes next week that Mrs. Jeanie E. Hite, wife of Alvin P. Hite, Cresaptown, be indicted on a charge of manslaughter by automobile in the death of her 4-year-old son, Sherman Thomas Hite, who died yesterday morning at 5 o'clock in Allegheny hospital.

The child was fatally injured Monday evening when the car police said his mother, 20, was driving, side-wiped a pole on Bedford road about 200 yards south of Nave's crossroad.

Dewey Spiker, Mann's Choice, Pa., and Morgantown, W. Va., owner of the automobile, was held under bond of $1,000 as a material witness in the case by Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., in trial magistrates court yesterday afternoon. Spiker was committed to the county jail in default of the bond.

In a statement to Harris yesterday morning, Mrs. Hite said she met Spiker at a tavern in Cresaptown and he asked her to drive him to Frostburg to see some friends.

After the visit, they started back to Cumberland on Mt. Savage road and when they reached this city Spiker became ill from beer and whisky he consumed, Harris stated.

He added that Mrs. Hite, who has no driver's license, began to drive to Bedford, Pa., to visit relatives. Mrs. Hite's son and 2-year-old daughter were in the car.

Mrs. Hite stated that when they approached a curve the car was crowded off the road and Spiker's machine side-wiped the pole. Mrs. Hite's son was leaning out of the window at the time and his head struck the pole, causing the fatal injury.

Harris said Mrs. Hite had been acquainted with Spiker for some time. Her husband was discharged in July after serving overseas for several years, police said.

OPA Compensates Dealers for Small Red Point Losses

Maryland State Director Leo H. McCormick yesterday called attention to the OPA provision recently made which enables retailers and wholesalers to obtain red points to compensate for losses due to theft, spoilage and other reasons.

The action has been taken because dealers have frequently suffered small point losses which, individually did not warrant making application but over a period of time reached considerable totals.

Lower point values in effect during the August and September rationing periods for meat, cheese, margarine and butter, will make it necessary for dealers to apply for additional red points. These normal point losses occur when dealers have had to pay more red points for stocks of rationed goods than they receive when they sell them.

The new provision permits wholesalers and retailers who have never obtained such an adjustment to apply to their local war price and rationing boards for enough red points to restore their net point inventories to seventy-five per cent of their maximum allowable inventories, the largest number of points they are permitted to have at one time.

If the applicant has previously received additional red points to offset losses due to point value reductions, he may obtain enough points to restore his net point inventory to fifty-five per cent of the maximum allowable inventory.

Inventories must be taken not later than September 29, 1945, and applications may be submitted to the ration board where the applicant is registered not later than October 13, 1945.

J. C. CHRISTOPHER PHOTOGRAPHS JAPS IN PHILIPPINES

T-S Joseph C. Christopher, former manager of the photographic department of Harvey's store and employee at the Allegheny Ballistics Laboratory, was assigned to photograph "Tiger of Malay" in his Philippine mountain hideout after his surrender.

In a letter to his wife, Mrs. Virginia L. Christopher, 706 Glenmore street, the local photographer wrote of traveling over treacherous roads to Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita's hideout.

The roads were "narrow and knee deep in mud and barely wide enough for a vehicle to travel."

"In some places it could look down over sheer precipices to a depth of two or three thousand feet," he said.

At one place they had to walk across impassable ground to another jeep as engineers were busy conditioning the road so that the general could be taken down into the valley.

They photographed the hideout and followed the convoy to the airfield where the Japanese general boarded a plane for Baguio and formal surrender to Gen. Wainwright, Christopher said.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Clarence Christopher, 406 Goethe street, the soldier is the father of David Christopher, 7.

Railway Crossing Opens to Traffic Today

The new Western Maryland Railway crossing on Baltimore street was completed yesterday and was scheduled to be opened at midnight last night.

The crossing, the first of its type in Cumberland, is constructed of "Dublin Blocks." Similar crossings have been very successful in Hagerstown and in Pennsylvania.

Railroad men pointed out that in case repair work was necessary, maintenance men would merely have to remove the blocks where the work was to be done. This will result in faster repair work on the crossing.

Specimens of color photography, which had been prepared for entrance in a national exhibition, were displayed to Rotarians yesterday at their weekly luncheon at the Central YMCA.

The specimens, enlarged and mounted, were shown in connection with a talk on amateur photography by R. P. Piperoux, development engineer of the Celanese Corporation of America, who is an ardent amateur photographer, but who has become one of the foremost in the country by reason of important pioneering steps taken by him in the art.

Piperoux has evolved a method of making his colored photographs by separate color screenings with the black-and-white print superimposed upon them.

The prints shown were of an enlarged type and mounted. Some were in tones, some in black-and-white but the most of them in colors. They represented a wide range of subjects, serious, humorous and dramatic. One can have a lot of fun in taking pictures, he said.

Women really like to be photographed, Piperoux said, and will be quite patient about it, but the men usually are just the reverse, wanting to get the thing over with as quickly as possible.

Answering a query, Piperoux said American manufacturers are now equalling German excellence in cameras. For years, however, they lagged behind because, as he views it, the Germans saw that amateurs took the whole work seriously, while the Americans did not, following the theory of "you push the button and we do the rest." Thus, the necessary creative talent was not encouraged, he said.

Amateur photography is a marvelous thing for keeping life-like records of growing children, the speaker declared. This, he said, is a sufficient motive for anyone's taking it up as a hobby.

Birthday honors were accorded the Rev. Edward P. Heinze, pastor of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran church, whose anniversary falls within the week.

Mrs. Minnie Carl Carter, 66, wife of Lucius B. Carter, LaVale, died at her home at 11:30 a. m. yesterday after an illness of fifteen months.

Mrs. Carter was a member of St. Paul's Lutheran church and the auxiliary of the LaVale Volunteer Fire Department. Besides her husband she is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Katie Stockdale, Glyndon, and Miss Nettie Carl, Baltimore.

Hancock Strike Ends

HANCOCK, Sept. 25 (P) — A three-week work stoppage of forty-four union employees of the Jacobs Brothers Garment Company's Hancock factory ended today.

The employees, members of the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union (AFL), left the plant September 5 in protest against the employment of twenty-three non-union members.

Neither union nor company officials would discuss the basis through which the walkout was settled.

Community Chest Work Described In Bulletin

12,000 Copies Will Be Mailed to Cumberland Residents This Week

A newsy bulletin describing the various activities of the Cumberland Community Chest will be mailed to 12,000 Cumberland homes sometime this week.

The publication of the bulletin was authorized by the chest and prepared under the direction of the chest publicity committee comprised of Garland L. Johnston, chairman; Mrs. Norman Goldblatt, Mrs. Charles Helmrich, Gordon L. Bowie, Harold C. Wickard and Arnett M. Widener.

The copy was written by Mrs. Ann Everline and the booklet is illustrated with five cartoons on various phases of chest activity by James B. Craig, of the Cumberland News. The copy was edited and arranged by the advertising department of the Potomac Edison Company, Hagerstown.

The booklet was written solely for the purpose of acquainting Cumberland residents with the activities of their Community Chest and it does not solicit funds.

The committee of six appointed as public relations officers of the chest stated "we believe you will be surprised as we were, when we found out just how much the chest and its agencies are woven into our daily lives. We always thought it was for the 'other fellows' and now we have discovered that practically all of us have been the 'other fellow' and didn't know it."

The bulletin then proceeds to give brief, newsy accounts of the various chest activities including Associated Charities, YMCA, the Keating Day Nursery, Jewish Welfare Society, The Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Travelers Aid, Baby Welfare Society and Salvation Army.

The "Chest Dollar" is broken down into five parts. It is stated that forty six and one-half cents are spent for leisure time activities as provided by the YMCA, Boy and Girl Scouts etc. Thirty one cents are used for family service by the various agencies. The remainder goes for child care, shrinkage and campaign and administrative expense.

Lt. Cmdr. Geppert Returns after Four Years of Service

Lawyer Participated in Three Amphibious Landings in Pacific Area

Wearing three battle stars, Lt. Cmdr. William H. Geppert, USNR, Cumberland lawyer, returned home last evening after more than four years of active duty.

Cmdr. Geppert arrived in San Francisco on the aircraft carrier Saratoga from Guam, where he was officer in charge of amphibious intelligence.

The battle stars represent his participation in the amphibious landings on Saipan and Tinian, two Jima and Okinawa. He had been in the Pacific area for twenty-one months.

Cmdr. Geppert arrived here from Washington where he was released to inactive duty. His wife joined him on his arrival in Washington a week ago, and he had a joyous reunion with the rest of his family on his arrival here last evening.

First of Series Of Open Lectures To Be Held Friday

Western Maryland Section of Chemical Society Is Sponsor

The first of a series of eight monthly public lectures on scientific matters by local speakers will be held by the Western Maryland section of the American Chemical Society at 7:30 p. m. Friday in the Cumberland Free Public Library.

Fred Portess, a research chemist at the Celanese plant and a graduate of the University of Chicago, where much of the original work was done on the atomic bomb project, will be the speaker at Friday's meeting.

Portess will speak on "Atomic Energy and Nuclear Physics and its Relation to the Atomic Bomb."

In his address, Portess will deal with the properties and production of the particles of matter used in nuclear bombardment; the classical experiments of Rutherford, Cockcroft and Walton which first demonstrated that new atoms could be created with tremendous energy release; the cyclotron and its operation; the results and application of this nuclear research, and a summary of these principles as applied to a description of the atomic bomb.

The series of lectures is being held primarily for the benefit of members of the general public who might be interested in scientific matters. An effort will be made to discuss timely topics in science at each lecture.

Capt. Arthur F. Jones Arrives Home on Forty-five Day Leave

Former Local Physician Served as Surgeon in Five ETO Campaigns

By MARY LOUISE BUZZELL
Landing at Omaha beach with one of the two surgical teams which took part in the initial assault on Normandy in the D-day invasion June 6, 1944, Capt. Arthur F. Jones, former local physician, worked for six days without a break, assisting in handling the first surgery done in quantity on the European continent after the invasion.

Capt. Jones, who came home Monday evening to spend a forty-five-day leave with his wife, Mrs. Martha Roberts Jones, 329 Cumberland street, and their two children, described some of his experiences in an interview last night.

Describes Teams
"Our two surgical teams consisted of six surgeons and two anesthetists," Capt. Jones said. "We handled only severely wounded men. After the surgery was performed, the patients were taken to tents in the area. The first evacuation field hospital unit did not arrive until four days after the invasion, and the evacuation of casualties began two days later."

Assigned to the Two Hundred Sixty-first Medical battalion, Five Hundred Thirty-first engineering regiment of the first special amphibious engineering brigade, veterans of beach landings in Africa, Sicily and Italy, Capt. Jones crossed the English channel in an LCI on D-day.

He recalled that one infantryman landed at Omaha beach in an unusual manner. The soldier, who had insisted on carrying all his equipment on his back, stepped off an LCM into deep water. His inflated life belt and the weight of his equipment forced the soldier over on his back and he had to be towed ashore feet first.

After six days on the beachhead, Capt. Jones served with field hospital units during the campaigns of Normandy, Northern France, the battle of the bulge in Belgium, east of the Rhine, and Central Germany.

Capt. Jones said that Lt. Margaret Slanger, the only army nurse killed in action after D-day, was serving with his unit when she was fatally wounded by a shell fragment at Malmédy last October. A hospital ship has been named in her memory.

Visits Buchenwald
While at Weimar, Germany, Capt. Jones and other medical officers visited the notorious Buchenwald concentration camp ten days after the prisoners were liberated last April.

"Reports of conditions at Buchenwald are not exaggerated," Capt. Jones said. "When we visited the place, there were approximately 30,000 prisoners there, because the process of repatriating them was slow. We saw bodies stacked in piles. Hundreds of prisoners were dying each day, and the bodies were heaped up awaiting burial."

Capt. Jones reported that the Jerries respected the Geneva cross on field hospital tents, and that many times the surrounding area was shelled or bombed but the field hospitals were not attacked.

Enlisting in November, 1942, when he was commissioned a captain, Capt. Jones spent three weeks at LaGuardia general hospital, New York.

Uniontown Group To Get Hearing on Dyer Auto Theft Charge

Three Uniontown, Pa., youths arrested here Sunday morning will be given preliminary hearings before United States Commissioner Wilbur V. Wilson at 10 o'clock this morning on charges of violating the Dyer Automobile Theft act, Howard P. Loughrie, United States deputy marshal, said yesterday.

Pennsylvania authorities for whom the three youths at first were held, requested that the case be disposed of in federal court, Loughrie stated. The youths were arrested in South Cumberland by Lt. James E. Van and Officer Edward C. Woods after they walked to this city from the Narrows where the automobile stalled.

Woods stopped the trio on Virginia avenue for questioning and was told their car stalled and they were looking for a place to spend the night. After directing them to the B. and O. YMCA, Woods called police headquarters and Lt. Van took the youths into custody.

The youths were held at the Virginia avenue police station. They were taken to the B. and O. YMCA, where they were held overnight.
